At Carillo Consulting Group, we are committed to making cloud technology accessible and affordable for non-profits of all sizes, empowering them to create greater impact in their communities. Our extensive experience working with non-profits has provided us with a deep understanding of the unique challenges faced by organizations, particularly smaller ones.

Recent survey results have given us valuable insights into the obstacles non-profits encounter as they consider moving to the cloud. While many small and very small non-profits recognize the benefits of cloud adoption - such as improved efficiency, cost savings, and enhanced collaboration - questions still remain.

Challenge

28% of very small non-profits (under 10 staff) feel they are behind in technology investments and capabilities.

This highlights the struggle small organizations face in keeping up with evolving technology needs.

Transition to Remote Work

87% of very small non-profits and 75% of small non-profits (11–24 staff) transitioned to remote work.

The shift to remote work has been significant across both small and very small non-profits.

Cloud Technology Benefits

78% of small non-profits and over 90% of very small non-profits agree that cloud technology is compelling for enabling remote work.

Both groups believe cloud-based applications are easier to manage and secure, simplifying operations.
